

Fall 2022 Courses Recommended for the International Studies Major

International Studies is an interdisciplinary major, coordinated by the departments of anthropology, business management, economics, history, political science, and world languages and cultures. Our majors combine the required components of the major in an almost limitless combination of courses from these and other departments both at Washington College and in our abroad programs.

There is no minor in International Studies, though non-majors (and majors) are encouraged to pursue a minor in a regional area such as Asian Studies, European Studies, Latin American Studies, and Near Eastern Studies; or in a functional areas such as Black Studies, International Business or Peace and Conflict Studies.
